Sentenced

Log line:

After human life ends, souls encounter a well dressed man who frightens them, as they learn what they perceived as myth...is actually a real fate.

Synopsis:

Hell bursts open its fiery prison gates as Mr. Louis dictates forms of tortures and sufferings to those who chose this eternal path. Mr. Louis visits earth from time to time and makes a few social calls to the unprepared.

Grieving humans find themselves resorting to diabolical behavior in order to be with others who have died. And yet some people display their hateful and rude manners to a being far more sinister than themselves.

Mr. Louis holds conversations with people as they describe their lustful desires. Sometimes, Mr. Louis goes so far to inquire as to whether or not the person believes in God. He learns many have a self condemning nature.

Those who act tough and superior find themselves in a realm where the physical laws of science no longer applies, and all forms of Earthly help have been stripped away.

Finally awareness befalls them and they are in a constant state of fear and remorse for their inability to alter the Earthly actions they left behind.

In the end Mr. Louis lectures humanity of their many mistakes and wicked ways, and how he is awaiting everyone who chooses to rebel.
